According to STATS SA, an estimated 7 million South Africans are HIV positive. Almost all of us are affected by HIV and AIDS. There is really NO cure for HIV/Aids. The best we can do to prevent this disease from spreading and taking more lives, is to educate and create awareness. Knowledge is power.

According to the etu.org.za website, in 1990 the life expectancy of people living with HIV/AIDS was 60 years. This has decreased tremendously over the past few years, and

The struggle of a girl child begins even before the day she is conceived. In India, female foeticide is a worrying practice, as cheap abortion technology allows households to exercise their preference for sons over daughters. She is 'lucky' if she is allowed to be born. Even after birth, the girl child faces discrimination and oppression. She is not provided with proper nutrition compared to her male siblings, her education is not given much importance and in many cases, parents prefer that their sons continue schooling, and want their daughters to stay at home and do household work. After marriage, the trials faced by women do not end as she continues to face oppression and even violence in her marital home.

The observance of the WED also provides an opportunity for the signing and ratification of International Environmental Convention. Individuals and groups are also encouraged to explore the amazing species in their everyday life and the nature they love.

1972. It was dubbed "Conference on Human Environment" and the objective was to come up with ways of addressing the challenges of conserving and promoting the human environment. On December 15, 1972, the General Assembly adopted a resolution designating June 5 as the World Environment Day. Government and organizations working with the UN were encouraged to organize activities that reaffirm their commitment to preserving and enhancing the environment.

The first WED was observed on June 5, 1974. Since then, the UNEP has helped raise awareness around growing environmental concerns such as depletion of ozone layer, pollution, and global warming. The aim of the WED is to give a face to environmental issues and also make people active agents of fair and sustainable development.

On 5-6-2018 in our college campus 54 students and 6 faculties have participated in the world environment day and have given the importance of environment in each individual.
